To Whom It May Concern:

Corporate Position on Animal Testing:

Our goal at Kutol Products Company is to make products that are free from ingredients that are derived from or tested on animals. Kutol has never tested its products on animals nor do we advocate or support animal testing on any ingredients we use. Kutol will not and has not delegated animal testing to others on our behalf. In rare instances where regulatory authorities require specific tests in order to sell products that improve human health, Kutol Products Company will comply with the law. Otherwise, we will look for other alternatives.

Animal Derived Ingredients:

While many cosmetics and soaps have historically used ingredients with animal origins, this is no longer true today. Kutol uses alternative ingredients that are made from stocks other than animals. All of our soaps use a vegetable based fatty acid. Our creams and lotions use synthetically derived waxes and emollients. Our surfactant based soaps and enhancing additives are chosen to avoid ingredients with any animal origin. We list all our ingredients on our packages. Should you ever desire more information on the source of the material we use, Kutol would be happy to provide more specific information.

Sincerely,
